Just a Social Visit

Tonopah democrats should feel justly proud of the distinction accorded them by the lordly Newlands, who is possessed of such a fine sense of chivalry that he travels 2000 miles for the pleasure of grasping the hands of the men of southern Nevada and assuring them of his friendship. That is what he said yesterday and, then to make sure that there would be no possible misunderstanding of the objects of his journey, he reiterated the statement last night to an assemblage of fellow-citizens of the same political complexion.

Just a social call. That's all, as a certain advertiser of whiskies puts it. The whiskey and mineral water were there, too, to conjure the embers of patriotism into a flame of enthusiasm, and there were speeches and remarks—not to say explanations that were hardly in harmony with a purely social function.

This should be a proud day for the sons of the desert when they think of the prestige lent their district by the presence of a kid-glove statesman mingling with them and shaking their horny hands of toil for the mere satisfaction of escaping the sensuous atmosphere of the capitol at Washington. This is an honor of which all should be proud, and when the idea of November a year hence roll around let it not be said that the democrats of Tonopah and Nye county were insensible of the condescension.

There was no politics in the meeting, at least the managers insisted that there would be no politics. Just a love feast and fraternizing of the clans, a symposium of fellow spirits whose redundancy of loyalty called for some such outburst of devotion.

It does not happen every day that a millionaire will deign to desert the primrose paths of eastern culture just to enjoy himself by contact with plebeian life. Few persons realize that Newlands finds rest and relaxation from the pressing cares of state in this form of diversion, but he says he does, and what he says goes without the addition of sale. The country is threatened with war's wild alarms, the foe is at the door of the capitol, the borders of the Rio Grande are seething with discord and Wall street is in a ferment over the proposed currency reforms. What does that matter to a statesman of the caliber of the chivalrous Newlands when the boys in this section are dying to see their chieftain and grasp the hand of the champagne star, the peerless Bryan? The whole universe may go to the demitisse bonbons in such a crisis so long as the faithful adherents of the machine are eager to meet the man who presides at the pie counter. The lust of office may have impelled some of the local followers to forego their customary game of solo and cause them to hie to the parlors of Mr. Newlands, but such a mercenary thought should be banished to oblivion. Nothing could be further from the public reality. The men who hold office and who draw salaries from the public tax roll are satisfied to meet with such an eminent gentleman as the guest of the day, and they showed their appreciation by turning out and lapping up the words of wisdom that were dropped at intervals in the exchange of amenities.

All that was needed to lend eclat to the proceedings was a brass band to play "Hail to the Chief," but that would not be in line with the new role of Newlands as a social leader. If we are to believe him, he has eschewed politics on this trip and is not paying any attention to his fences.

Other States Get Busy

While Nevada languishes in the race for place in the Panama-Pacific exposition other states are getting busy with their buildings, and many of them are increasing their appropriations. Among the latter is Utah, which insists on raising its appropriation from $50,000 to $150,000 that the visitors to the big fair may not overlook the opportunities for advertising state resources. Even distant Minnesota is to the front with an offer of $100,000 for a state building, and Iowa and Nebraska are straining every nerve to get there with the best building on the grounds.

In the meantime, a lot of knockers are doing their best to persuade the voters of Nevada to wench on the proposition to erect a building that will justly typify the best land in the union and the section that will be developed more rapidly than any other by the opening of the canal. While owners of motor cars and other luxurious appointments may clamor for boulevards, the farmer wants some attention paid to the development of water, the growing of trees, the raising of beef cattle and fat sheep. He wants these things for the reason that factories will follow in the wake of settlers, and machinery, farm appliances and all sorts of supplies will be cheapened when the population warrants cheaper rates. The installation of factories and jobbing houses will contribute to a lowering of rates all round and the farmer will be benefited by deriving more from his crops by paying less for transportation and through finding a ready market at home for all he may produce.

Nevada needs the advertising, and needs it worse than any other state, and it would be the height of folly for sane men to think of withdrawing the appropriation.

A Placerville (Cal.) jury found that a recent wreck was caused by the train running too fast. When we read that the said train was annihilating time at the rate of twelve miles an hour we wonder what those juries expect of a railroad.

NEAR ACCIDENT TO ONE OF THE CLARK PARTY

SALT LAKE LINE OFFICIAL NARROWLY ESCAPES DEATH UNDER TRAIN.

RENO, Oct. 22.—Passengers on train No. 23 last night saw a near tragedy that sent their hearts into their throats for a few moments.

In a private car at the end of the train was a party of seven officials of the San Pedro, Los Angeles & Salt Lake railroad, and it was one of these, whose name was not learned, who caused the excitement.

As the train pulled out and attained a speed of perhaps ten miles an hour the stranger took a desperate chance, ran and caught the hand rail of a car in the center. He hung for a moment only, before falling to the ground, almost beneath the wheels. By the barest chance he rolled out instead of toward the train, escaping death by inches.

Warned by an emergency signal, the engineer brought his train to a stop. Half a score bystanders rushed toward the prostrate figure, expecting to find a mangled body, but before they reached the man he jumped to his feet, ran to the rear of the train and got aboard the private car.
